

Ciaques

The Caique is quite small in size, but has beautiful colors which are both vibrant and bright with a number of different colors that they will display in their plumage. Unlike most others in the parrot family, the Caique is not very good at imitating a human voice although they are very vocal.

What these parrots are well known for is their ability to bond with humans and their playful nature. As they are very active, they love to play with their toys and need lots of time to play as well as demand the attention of their owners. As they love to chew a number of chew toys would be a good idea.
